About me.

Hello. My name is Young Jang. I am a Japanese Language and Literature major and a Human Centered Design minor at Dartmouth College.

My favorite part about design is the ability to give meaning and human emotion to technical functions. This is especially true when it comes to UI design. I think that good design can have a tremendous impact on how the user feels about the product as a whole.

I'm excited to work at DALI lab with talented designers and developers. I hope to grow and learn as much as possible from everyone in the lab. I'm look forward to collaborating with others who share my vision and passion for design.

Video games.

I love playing video games. I can talk for hours upon hours about game design. If you enjoy playing video games, let's chat!

All time favorites.

Crash Bandicoot (PS1)

Metal Gear Solid (PS1)

Overwatch (PC)

Currently playing.

Legend of Zelda: Breath of the Wild (Wii U)

Hearthstone (PC)

About my page.

I used a simple one column design with blue shades to reflect my relaxed personality.

The typeface is Helvetica Neue, which gives a modern feel while being easy to read. I used small typographic shifts to create structure and organization for the different sections of my page.

I also included vector logos of the video games that I featured on my page. Since games are most commonly associated with their title graphics, I believed that it was important to include them on my page.

Typography.
